Sheftel's threeyear-old colt Highball, by Ben Strome— Strychinia, by a short head. Irish Lad was an overwhelming favorite, opening at 11 to 5 and closing at 7 to 5. Toboggan was a 10 to 1 shot, while Beldame was quoted at 20 to 1. There were seventeen starters, the send off at the post was perfect and the race was truly run. The handicap was worth $10.880 to the winner.

The greatest crowd that ever passed through the gates of America's most picturesque race course saw the struggle of the thoroughbreds. It was estimated that fully 40,000 men and women were on hand when the clarion notes of the bugle called the horses from the paddock. The huge grandstand was packed, so that the aisles were impassable. The green lawn, stretching for nearly a quarter of a mile from the exclusive clubhouse to the democratic "free field," was black with humanity.

The betting ring, where more than 100 layers occupied stools and manipulated the odds, was jammed with thousands of struggling men who swore and perspired as they were hurled about like children in a panic-stricken mob.

The clubhouse, where society gathered in radiant gowns and new spring clothes, was the mecca for all notables who love the turf for pure sport's sake. Out on the soft grass in long benches and comfortable chairs women of beauty and fashion basked in the warm sunlight, while in the paddock near by the well bred sons and daughters of famous sires and dams walked nervously to and fro, waiting for the call to the post. It was a picture that had a background of woodland in the distance, with gloomy looking stables and the long yellow stretches as far as the eye could reach. Gay parties came in tally-ho coaches wenty of them, while hundreds of equipages of all styles were herded together in the enclosure near the starting point of the great race. Furthermore, 200 buzzing, whirring automobiles were there, and their passengers, after having the dust remove from their togs, joined the throng without It was a day made to order by the weather

god. The sun blazed from a cloudless sky, and a breeze from the Westchester hills tempered the warm atmosphere so that the outing was delightful in every respect. Morris Park has always been the most popular racetrack operating under the jurisdiction of the Jockey Club. and with this wonderful outpouring of the populace it was once more demonstrated that racing has the public by the ears.

August Belmont, the chairman of the Jockey Club, was on hand early. James R. Keene, J. H. Bradford, John Hunter and other veterans in the service to whom credit belongs for the integrity of the sport, were there, too, together with men known all over the world in finance, politics, law, and, in fact, every profession, down to the big gamblers and the prizefighters, for a racetrack crowd is always cosmopolitan, no matter how you look at it.

Irish Lad was a great three-year-old last year. He won the Brooklyn Handicap in a sensational finish in which he beat the ale W. C. Whitney's Gunfire. In other races he showed such sterling racing qualities that it was an open question which was the champion three-year-old, he or the big stake winner, Africander. Irish Lad win tered at Aiken, S. C., under the watchful eye of Trainer John W. Rogers and prepared for the Metropolitan at Sheepshead Bay. It was on Tuesday last that he convinced his owner and trainer that he could win yesterday's big race, barring accidents.

He worked a mile in 1:41 with heavy shoes. Shaw had the mount and Trainer Rogers gave the signal to get under way. The Candlemas colt covered the half in 0.47 1-5 and was going in grand shape at the three-quarter pole when Rogers waved his handkerchief as a signal to Shaw to ease up. Shaw misunderstood the signal, however, and drew his whip. The first blow he landed made Irish Lad swerve across the track. When the jockey got him straight again he rode him out to the end in 1:41. If he had not drawn his whip the work would have been done in faster time, no doubt. The public, unusually wise as to turf matters, knew of the famous colt's condition, and thousands went to the track the ring was, in the vernacular of the turf, The long lines behind the books extended far out onto the lawn, the layers paying out a fortune. Of the original list of entries sent out Wednesday night, Mattie Corbett's Dazzling, F. R. Docter's Rostand, John E. Madden's Pulsus and W. C. Daly's Illyria were scratched. Madden, however, added City Bank, while James R. Keene's Toboggan and Careless, E. R. Thomas's Buttons and J. D. Adkins's Lord of the Valley were also added starters. While Irish Lad was the hottest kind of favorite, nearly all the others were played. Jacob Worth's Mamie Worth, the noted sprinter, was backed down from tens to eights, while Highball was always an offer at 8 to 1. The Keene pair were picked up at tens, while E. R. Thomas's double entry, Stalwart and Butions, were backed at the same odds. R. H. McCarter Potter's Damon was lowered to 12 to 1, while W. L. Oliver's Lord Badge, Mrs. L. Curtis's good mare Eugenia Burch, the Albemarle Stable's Lux Casta and M. L. Hayman's Orthodox were also fancied.

While the betting was under way, the horses were receiving the finishing touches in the paddock in the presence of an athusiastic gathering, including many

GORMAN HERE TO SEE MURPHY And other Democrats-May Have Some thing to Say Later.

Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryand came over from Washington last night and was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He is to see to-day Leader Charles F. Murphy of Tammany and a number of other Demo cratic politicians, and it is just possible that he will have a talk with Col. James M. Guffey, Democratic, national committeeman for Pennsylvania, who is expected to join the group either to-day or to-morrow. Senator Gorman said that after he had talked with these Democrats he might have something to say concerning his ideas on the present Democratic situation.

It has been known for several weeks that if Chief Judge Alton B. Parker is nominated by the Democrats at St. Louis he greatly desires that Senator Gorman should be chairman of the Democratic national committee. Judge Parker has the greatest confidence in Senator Gorman's abilities as a campaigner, and he and his friends believe that Senator Gorman is regarded as a sane and safe Democrat by the business community. On the other hand it has been known all along that many Democrats would like to have Col. Guffey for chairman, no matter who is nominated at St. Louis, but of course the candidate invariably has the selection of the chairman who is to conduct the battle for him. Senator Gorman's friends said last night that he was not sufficiently robust to undertake the management of another Demo cratic national battle, and others said that he should not be eliminated from the Presidential possibilities of his party, and they added that Senator Gorman would have a good many delegates in the national convention at St. Louis. But some of those most intimate with Senator Gorman are of the opinion that he himself does not seriously regard the views of his friends that he is still a Presidential possibility.

ALIVE AND HEIR TO $142,000. George Miller, a Typhoid Patient, Will Hear Good News From Brooklyn. George Miller, the only son of the late Charles Miller, a rich Brooklyn grocer, who had been missing for nearly three years, and for whom a search was begun on the death of his father, a few months ago, has been located in the county hospital at Sacramento, Cal. A letter from the young man was received yesterday by one of his friends in Brooklyn, stating that he had been laid up in the hospital for a month with an attack of typhoid fever. He was still in ignorance of the fact that his father, who discarded him over three years ago and sent him off to make his own fortune, was dead, and that by his will the $1,000,000 estate he had left was to be equally livided between him and his six sisters.

Mr. Moffett of the law firm of Moffett A Kramer, which is looking after the interest of the heirs, was notified of the young man's whereabouts and communicated with the authorities of the hospital in Sacramento, and requested them to acquaint the young man with the change in his fortunes, and tell him to return to Brooklyn as soon as his bealth would permit.

Miller, who is now in his thirtieth year, has wandered through most of the Western States since his exile from Brooklyn, and has had many adventures, including a marriage in California and a subsequent divorce. The probating of his father's will will be delayed until he gets back.

The electric controller on the rear platform of a Union Railway trolley car at West Farms and Bear Swamp roads blew out at 6 o'clock last night, when the car was crowded with passengers from the Morris Park races. One passenger was burned and a number were hurt in the rush to get out of the car.

The car was one of a long line crowded to overflowing. Men were five rows deep on the rear platform.

When the controller burned out, James Coyle of Taylor street, Van Nest, who had been leaning against it, was burned about the face and hands.

Rescuers Heard Their Tapping, but Were Driven Away by Another Fall. ASHLAND, Pa., May 5 .- With freedom only a short distance away, yet helplessly pinned down and imprisoned by a fall of coal and rock in a breast at the Continental colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, George Zueb and Joseph Osunsky, Girardville miners, rapped signals of encouragement that spurred on a band of rescuers for several hours to-day.

At 12 o'clock the messages, which came in the form of repeated tappings on the coal with a pick, cessed. The men are believed to have suffocated. Late this afternoon the rescuers uncovered a boot, but before they could determine whether or not it contained a foot they were driven to seek safety by sounds which preceded another heavy fall. The mine officials expect to reach both men by morning, though little hope is held out that they are alive.

TRIES THE POOR MAN'S MATTRESS AT THE MILLS HOTEL.

Sees Poorhouse and Chinatown-Tenderloin Cut Out-Bodies in the Morgue Found Dead by Prof. Balley-Sociologleal Studies and a Diary Thereon.

The social standing average of the guests at the Mills Hotel in Bleecker street got its annual boost last night when sixty-four Yale students and their professor of sociology, William B. Bailey, slept there after a hard day's work in studying the raw naterial of sociology on Blackwell's Island, the East Side and in Chinatown. Twenty of the delegation were divinity students. All the others were seniors in the academic department. Prof. Bailey never brings any of the under class men on his annual sociological junkets, because he thinks, they are too young to understand. After four years of sociology in text books, however, a student of average intelligence will recognize a tenement house at a glance, especially if the washing s strung out on the fire escapes.

The students arrived from New Haven early in the day, and went first to the Morgue, where an attendant rolled out some of the slides with corpses on them for the benefit of the visitors. "Now, gentlemen," said Prof. Bailey.

speaking without referring to his notes, these are dead bodies." Some of the students made notes of the fact. . Others seemed to think they could Then they all boarded the ferry for Blackwell's Island, where they went through the various institutions and had lunch in the poorhouse, concerning which Prof. Bailey made some more remarks. From Blackwell's Island the delegation went to Ward's Island, although the institutions there for the foolish are already crowded. That ended the daylight sightseeing.

The sociologists had supper at the Mills Hotel and then went to the Bowery. In the Atlantic Garden they studied a tightrope walker and the "lady orchestra in white" for half an hour and then went to the Chinese opera house in Pell street where they saw five minutes of "The Highbinders of Tientsin." At night Prof. Bailey was assisted in showing his charges the life of the downtrod by Detectives Carr, Caddell, and Martin, the plain clothes men of the Elizabeth street station. The cops had nothing to do in the way of restraining the students. for the delegation was so full of sociology hat not once in the course of the day or the night did the visitors give so much as a sample of the Yale yell, not even when they were officially welcomed to Chinatown by Chuck Connors. Chuck knew in advance that they were coming and had spent the afternoon studying an old newspaper clipping containing a speech of wel-come by Mayor Low to a Chinese prince. "I welcome yours to Chinatown," said Chuck, "and everythin' is open from the Joss House to the dope joints. I hope that the relations between Chinatown an' youse will always be of muchool benefit."

"I thank you," replied Prof. Bailey, and the sixty-five students of sociology filed solemnly by without a murmur.

After seeing the Highbinders, the students were led by the detectives up two flights of rickety stairs to a concert hall across

It was too early for there to be much busi nees in the place. When the students filed in, there were only one man and one woman in the place, and they were just beginning to get acquainted. To be studied as types and have notes taken on their mutual advances seemed to chill their budding affection, and they left their beer glasses half filled to seek another shelter. The waiters hustled around and placed chairs about the tables for the sixty-five and then waited for orders, but there were none to speak of. Out of the sixtyfive callers the house got three sales of soft stuff and one order for a package of cigarettes. The soloist of the place quit singing mother songs and sang "How Dry I Am!" in four languages, but the sociologists were not swerved. When four unattached women drifted in and smiled at the sixtyfive young men altogether, Prof. Bailey led the retreat to the Joss House, where each young man spent a quarter for a package of punk.

Then they went to a Chinese restaurant and to a lodging house and then back to the Mills Hotel.

The story of the day was found in skeleon form in the lost notebook of the only one of the sixty-five young men who stole away by himself to do some original research work in the Tenderloin, which wasn't on Prof. Bailey's schedule this year. It was somewhere in the Tenderloin that he lost the book and he spent so much time, with the help of two young women and a cab driver, trying to find it that he didn't get to the Mills Hotel to sleep. In the finals in sociology, his fellow students say. he will be conditioned on the subject of the TORNADO HITS OKLAHOMA. Small Town Reported Wiped Out-Wind Storm in Northern Iows.

CHICAGO, May 5 .- A tornado, which swept a small area of Iowa this afternoon, caused considerable alarm in the northern and northwesters parts of the State. The Weather Bureau believes that the Iowa storm is the tail end of the tornado earlier in the day in Oklahoma Territory. The damage done in Iowa was not great, according to reports to-night, but the telegraph and telephone systems are so demoralized that little news can be secured. From Sioux City comes a report of a errific wind storm followed by rain, which did slight damage only. In the area visited by the storm there are several settlements, which are cut off from all communication to-night, and it is feared that the damage there may be serious and that to-morrow loss of life will be reported.

A destructive tornado, followed by a fearful hailstorm and later a cloudburst. did great damage in Oklahoma. Wires are down and details are meagre. CANAL MATTERS DISCUSSED.

Conference at the White House Over the Government of the Canal Zone. WASHINGTON. May 5 .- Secretary Taft. Attorney-General Knox and the members of the Isthmian Canal Commission were guests of President Roosevelt at dinner ference with the President on Canal matters. Plans for the government of the Canal zone were discussed, and it was decided to place the Canal Commission under the jurisdiction of the War Department in the same way as the Philippine Commission was by President McKinley. Gen. George W. Davis is to be administrator of the Canal one instead of "Governor," the only change from the former plan being in the title to be held by Gen. Davis.

President Roosevelt will transmit in few days to Secretary Taft complete instructions relating to the work of the commission, and will issue a formal order placing the commission under the War Department. The commission will prepare as soon as possible such legislation as it considers necessary at this time, and it will then be passed upon by Secretary Taft and Attorney-General Knox. This legislation will include provision for courts and a police system, it being the intention to employ mixed courts of residents of Panama and of Americans.

One of the most important matters discussed at the meeting to-night was the selection of a chief engineer of the Panama Canal. After thoroughly considering the names of several prominent civil engineers, it was decided to whom the place shall be offered, but the selection will be kept secret until he makes known whether he can accept the place. structions relating to the work of the com-

WOMAN SURPRISES BURGLAR. Charges of Shoplifting.

CAUGHT IN A BRONX LOT, HIS POCKETS FULL OF JEWELRY.

Mrs. Dalley, Alone With Her Child in the House, Found Him-Couldn't Get Out by Window He Jumped Through, but Got Help in Time-Reserves in Chase.

Mrs. Mary Dailey, who lives with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Lecouver, in fine homestead at 166th street and Sedgwick avenue, in The Bronx, went to a second floor bedroom at 6 c'clock last night and found a man ransacking the bureau drawers. Mrs. Dailey's six-year-old daughter, Elsie, was asleep in the room. Mr. Lecouver, who is president of the Lecouver Press Company, at 41 Broad street, was automobiling with his wife. The two servants also were out. "What are you doing here?" Mrs. Dailey demanded. "The servants let me in," said the stranger. I am an insurance agent.

"There are no servants here," said Mrs. Dailey. "You're a burglar."

The man ran down to the kitchen and got out a window. He had got in through the same window by twisting out two of the iron bars. Mrs. Dailey ran to Mr. Lecouver's room and got his revolver. When she reached the kitchen window she couldn't climb out. Mrs. Dailey ran around to the front door, where she called to John Miller, a stableman for Thomas B. Leahy, who lives next door. Miller gave chase after the thief, who ran down Sedgwick avenue and turned into Wolf

Policeman Edward Edsall of the High Bridge police station, who was only a block away, heard Miller's yells and joined in the pursuit. He fired three shots at the fleeing man, but didn't hit him. After running along Wolf street for four blooks the thief turned into Lynde avenue, where there is a big vacant lot near the old aqueduct. The thief slipped through an opening in the high board fence.

The policeman was too big to get through the opening after him. He ran on to the next corner until he found a low place in the fence that he could climb.

Capt. Wendell of the High Bridge station had heard the shooting and sent out the reserves. They joined Miller and Mrs. Dailey, who had kept up the chase, and the whole party swarmed through into the lot.

Edsall got into the lot in time to see man run into a clump of bushes. "You come any nearer and I'll blow your head off." shouted the thief.

"You've got no gun. Come out," was Edsall's answer. The thief surrendered and was taken to the police station, where he said that he was John Missig, 24 years old, of Hoboken. He would give no further information about himself. Every pooket in Missig's clothes was ouiging with jewelry. TROLLEY CAR HITS A TRAIN. Three Hurt in an Accident Near the Island Creek Bridge.

Three persons were injured last night when a trolley car crashed into the rear end of a train on the Fifth avenue line just north of the Coney Island Creek bridge. Both trolley cars and trains run on the same tracks at this point. The trolley on the train slipped from the wire, and as a result the train was dark.

There is a curve where the accident oc-curred, and Motorman Henry Shafer of the trolley car didn't see the train until he was within a few feet of it. Then his brake refused to work. The front of the trelley car was badly smashed and Shafer was dragged from the wreck badly hurt. The train hands put him en a car and took him to Ulmer Park, where he lives.

ARREST MOTHER AND DAUGHTER LANDING ABOVE PORT ARTHUR Tenderioin Police Have the Couple on

A mother and daughter were locked up in the Tenderloin station yesterday as shoplifters. They were arrested in a Sixth avenue store after they had stolen $19.10 worth of lace and trinkets. When the mother was searched, property supposed to have been stolen from another store was found. She said she was Mrs. Mary Downes, 44 years old, of Suffern, N. Y. Mrs. Downes was well dressed and had more than $50 in her purse. Her daughter is a very pretty girl, and she first gave her name as Catherine Downes but changed the Christian name at her mother's solicitation to Jennie. She said she was 17. She took her arrest coolly, as did her mother.

Eight-Pound Boy. "Queenie." who was queen of the little people in the "Trip to the Moon" at Luna Park last summer, and who is Mrs. Arthur Balsamo in real life, gave birth to an eightpound boy last night. The mother is 38 inches tall and weighs only fifty pounds herself. She was attended by Dr. Pierce of Coney Island, who said that the child seemed to be perfectly normal.

The child has been named Prince Caspar. The husband and father is the son of fruit seller of Coney Island and is a man of average size. He and the queen eloped and were married last August, thereby defeating a plan of the press agent, as the latter explained, by which the little woman was to have married the King of the Moon. They live in Surf avenue, Coney Island.

Mrs. Hughes Is Alive. When Mrs. Lizzie Hughes, 22 years old, of 183 Sixteenth street, Jersey City, drank a poisonous mixture intended for external use on Wednesday night in mistake for medicine to be taken internally, she screamed that she was going to die, and her husband ran for the parish priest to administer the last rites of the church. The Rev. John J. Boylan hurried in and asked what had happened. The label on the bottle was shown to him and he forced a lot of milk and an emetic down the woman's hroat.

An ambulance surgeon who took Mrs. Hughes to St. Francis Hospital a few minutes later said that the priest's action undoubtedly saved the young woman's life.

Jall Breaker Who Married and Reformed Is Taken Back to Elmira. WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 5 .- After living for four years as a respected citizen of Berwick and marrying a young woman of that town, Morris McDale was arrested last night as an escaped convict. He confessed and to-day he was taken back to the Elmira Reformatory to finish a five year sentence for burglary in Binghamton. The news was a shock to McDale's wife and many friends, for he was one of the most respected men in the town. He went there four years ago and got work in the machine shops. McDale had a year and four months more to serve when he made his escape.

CHAMBERLAIN'S SON IN CHICAGO. Englishman Is Interested in Our Politics

but Can't Understand It. CHICAGO, May 5.-Arthur Chamberlain, son of the former Colonial Secretary for Great Britain, arrived in Chicago to-day to take a look at Illinois politics. He will remain in this country probably until after the Presidential election. "I'm interested in your politics," said Mr. Chamberlain. "That's why I came over. I knew it would be interesting, out I never thought it would be so different from our own canvasses. I confess that I don't understand it, and when I told that to Member Cannon in Washington he said that if I did I was better informed than

ers in the Altoons Shops. PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has issued orders for a 5 per cent. reduction of wages and the laying off of a considerable portion of the working forces in the various departments of the Altoona shops. This means that about 600 men will be laid off immediately and a reduction of from ten to twelve hours a week made in the working time of the shop men. One thousand men will be affected by the reduction. The company is inaugurating its annual spring retrench-

Despatches from St. Petersburg and from Chinese ports say that a great force on transports has been seen on the way to Pitzewo, about eighty miles northeast of Port Arthur, on Corean Bay, and that a landing is being made there. English military experts now believe that the Russians have exaggerated greatly the reports of the number of their troops in Manchuria.

TO CUT OFF PORT ARTHUR. Transports With Japanese Troops Arrive at Pitzewe on Cores Bay.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUE. St. Petersburg, May 5.-A despatch from Port Arthur, dated to-day, says that the Japanese fleet has taken up a position behind the Liaotishan promontory. Transports carrying Japanese troops have errived at Pitzewo, about eighty miles northeast of Port Arthur, it being the intention to land there.

are hovering off the coast near Kincheu Bay. LANDING AN IMPORTANT MOVE. LONDON, May 6.-Great importance is attached here to the news from Port Arthur of the Japanese movement toward Pitterro, as received in St. Petersburg. The information is not official, but its accuracy is not It is interpreted as showing that the long expected landing of the Japanese for the purpose of cutting of the garrison and leet at Port Arthur is beginning. Pitaewo is a village on the cast coast of the Liactung Peninsula, north of the Elliot Islands. It is some eighty miles northeast of Port

Arthur and about a hundred miles southeast of Newchwang. If a landing is accomplished there, it is assumed that the invaders will immediately throw up entrenchments across the peninsula, which is narrow thereabouts, thus shutting in Port Arthur on the land side as Admiral Togo is doing on the sea side. Togo is watching behind Liaotishan, where he practically cannot be reached by the siege of the place. There is no means of ascertaining which apanese army is off Pitzewo, but speculation favors the Second Army under Gen. Oku. This includes the sixth or Kumamoto division, which was prominently engaged in the operations against Port Arthur in the Chinese-Japanese War, and whose officers know the ground thoroughly.

ALEXIEFF LEAVES PORT ARTHUR. The departure of Admiral Alexiest and Grand Duke Boris to-day from Port Arthur is regarded as an indication of Russian recognition of the seriousness of the danger to Port Arthur and an inevitable

MOVEMENT ALSO TOWARD NEWCHWARG. The Jiji Shimpo, a newspaper of Tokio believes, however, that the Second Army will be landed in the neighborhood of Newchwang, and the reports taken to Chefoo by Chinese junks, if trustworthy, indicate a movement of troops to that place. It is pointed out here that there are two Kinchau bays, one in the northwestern port of the Gulf of Liaotung, some fifty miles west of Newchwang, and the other im diately north of Port Arthur. It is now not expected that Admiral Skrydloff, lately appointed to the com mand of the Russian fleet in Far Eastern waters, will reach Port Arthur. The deprivation of his personal influence, which in Admiral Makaroff's case so notably invigorated the equadron, is considered likely to affect strongly the efficiency of the defence. BALITIC PLEET TO STAY HOME.

Some commentators, looking far ahead and assuming unchecked progress for the Japanese, predict that Russia will not despatch her Baltic fleet to the Far East, in view of the apparently inevitable loss of the ships at Port Arthur. Referring to this the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail reports that agents of English and other firms with whom contracts were placed to supply coal to the Baltic fleet while en route to the Far East have been officially notified that it is more than probable that the fleet will remain in Europe, and that it is therefore not desirable that they forward much coal to Bizerta, Jibutil and Saigon, which were previously specified as the ports of de-
